First and foremost, we want you all to know how much we really miss everyone. School is not the same in this distance learning way. We are all learning from this challenging and unprecedented event. Many families have shared their struggle with balancing our new expectations of daily life and educating their own children. We understand. While teachers are providing a variety of work for students, they are also communicating with you as an attempt to maintain their positive classroom learning environment and to offer support. We know that everyone is doing the very best they can. It is important to remember that we are in this together and we will rise from this together because WE ARE CHITTENANGO!
